Definitely one of the better publication I have got possibly read. It really is writter in basic phrases and not difficult to understand. You wont sense monotony at anytime of your respective time (that's what catalogs are for about if you request me).

It was erected under foreign supervision, but it is said to be worked entirely by Chinamen. China feels herself competent to work a telegraph, and has it not o jly from near Pekin to Tientsin, but from Tlontsin onward to a river port near Shanghai. As soon as China feels that she can work a railway tho railway will come. A great deal that is said about China being ready for railways is premature. There is hardly a place in the north of the empire where a railroad would pay. What China wants first is good roads. After some 10 or 16 years of good roads an intercommunication traffic will spring up which will call for railways, but at present no such traffic, except perhaps on one route, has b en developed, and a railway, if built to morrow, would stand rusting its rails in idleness. It is all very well for merchants and speculators to call for rapid advance and improvements, but any one taking a fair and dispassionate view of the matter will, especially if he has any sympathy for the Chinese, feel that rapid advance and tho sudden introduction of rnilways would be anything but wise and patriotic on the part of China.--Pekin Letter to the Pall Mall Gazette A tremendous gas well was struck the other morning on the Emory farm in Washington county.
